

19th Century Renaissance Style Cabinet, Napoleon III, Mythological Decor, Hercules & The Lernaean

1 300 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : Bon état

Material : Solid wood

Description

Elegant 19th century cabinet, made in the Renaissance style. Made of blackened wood and richly decorated with repoussé bronze plaques. The front features an architectural composition framing a large central door with mythological decoration depicting Hercules slaying the Lernaean Hydra, an emblematic scene of heroic strength. The drawers and side panels are decorated with Renaissance motifs: leafy scrolls, grotesque masks and fantastic figures finely crafted in bronze. This cabinet combines the architectural rigor of the Renaissance with the ornamental virtuosity of the 19th century, in a particularly careful execution. Good general condition with some wear and small traces of friction. Retained patina of time.
