Description

Carved wooden pediment, likely limewood, with gold leaf and faux wood finish, dating from the Charles X period (circa 1820-1830). The composition is symmetrical and elegant, featuring scrolling foliage, architectural motifs, and a central medallion with a sculpted floral bouquet in relief. The deep carving and careful execution are typical of decorative work from Northern Italy, particularly the Veneto or Lombardy regions. Originally the upper crest of a mirror frame, it can now be used as an overdoor ornament or decorative wall element. Overall good condition: some losses to the gilding preparation and two minor missing carved elements, easily restorable. Dimensions: length 124 cm - maximum height 42 cm.
