

A Tokyo School Ivory Okimono Of Couple Carrying, Japan, Meiji Period

1 200 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Ivory

Width : 9cm

Height : 21cm

Depth : 7cm

Description

A Japanese ivory okimono, from the Tokyo School, dating from the Meiji period (1868-1912), depicting a Japanese couple in traditional dress. This absolutely fabulous antique Japanese hand-carved sculpture demonstrates an extraordinary level of complexity and finesse. This heavy sculpture is a testament to the artistry of its time. Its natural brilliance highlights the intricate hand-carved details, bringing out the artistry of the carver. The man holds a fan and sports a bun hairstyle, while the woman sports an intricate hairstyle. Every detail, from the expressions on the figures' faces to the folds and patterns of their clothing, reflects the dedication and artistry of the carver. The figures' facial features are crafted with remarkable precision, capturing serene expressions, bringing a quality

Dealer

Les Vieux Seigneurs
généraliste 18 et 19ème Siècle
Mobile : 0664587869

Terranjou 49380

of life to the piece. The women's clothing features fine textures depicting patterns such as waves, flowers, and geometric motifs. The craftsmanship is evident in the detailed folds and patterns of their garments, highlighting the skill and precision required to create such a piece. The base of the sculpture bears the brand's engraving. Dimensions: 21cm/8.27" high, 9cm/3.54" wide, 7cm/2.76" deep.