Description

A finely decorated small Japanese Satsuma teapot, attributed to the Kyoto school, circa 1885. The piece features a detailed multi-figure court scene on one side and a landscape composition on the reverse, all executed in polychrome enamels and richly applied gold. The lid and upper section are adorned with dense brocade-style gilt decoration (kinran-de), typical of Kyoto-style wares from the late Meiji period. The cream ground shows a tight crackle glaze consistent with high-quality Kyoto ceramics.
