The frame is richly decorated with hand-carved floral and acanthus motifs, all meticulously highlighted with original gold leaf gilding. At the center of the crest, a bold open-shell cartouche rises dramatically, flanked by scrolling foliage and blooming flowers, lending the piece a theatrical elegance characteristic of the Louis XV style.The mirror's generous proportions make it ideal as a statement piece, whether placed above a console, fireplace mantel, or simply resting against a wall. The original mercury glass retains a beautiful clarity with the subtle, desirable signs of aging that add depth and authenticity.The wood frame, likely carved from beech, remains structurally sound
