Description

Elegant pair of Italian torchères in carved and giltwood, dating from the 18th century, later adapted as table lamps. The finely sculpted tripod base and turned shaft reflect their original liturgical function, now subtly reinterpreted for decorative use. The lampshades, added in more recent times, are made of cream damask fabric with a decorative golden trim. Electrical wiring is working, though a revision is recommended to meet local safety standards. A charming and theatrical pair, ideal for classic interiors, console tables or entryways.
