Description
-------------

A refined and rare example of 19th-century French craftsmanship, this original hanging oil lamp dates from around 1880 and exudes the elegance of the Belle Époque. Its beautifully domed glass shade in an unusual turquoise hue is both striking and rare, perfectly complementing the ornate cast brass frame.

Suspended from four finely detailed brass rods, the body features richly scrolled arms with six integrated candle holders, enhancing its dual purpose as both an oil lamp and ambient lighting piece. Every element reflects the hand-crafted quality and aesthetic sensibilities of the period. Measuring 110 cm in height with a 70 cm diameter, the lamp has an imposing yet refined presence--ideal for serious collectors, interior designers, or those looking to elevate a historic
