Description

This exceptional wood-burning stove was crafted around 1880 in France by the renowned manufacturer Niederbronn, a name synonymous with quality cast iron craftsmanship in the 19th century. Constructed entirely from iron, the stove showcases finely cast panels featuring classical ornamentation, including symmetrical garlands, dramatic scrollwork, and expressive masks -- all executed in crisp relief.

Its elegant cabriole legs and original porcelain handles highlight the attention to detail and sculptural form that elevate this piece beyond utility. Every surface tells a story of refinement and precision, making it both a functional object and an artwork in its own right.

With a height of 100 cm, a width of 60 cm, and a depth of 40 cm, this stove is a true centrepiece --
