Description

In new condition, this remarkable portico clock with columns in rosewood and lemonwood marquetry, from the Charles X period (early 19th century), with a silvered moiré dial and Roman numerals in "anagram". Decorated with lyre and foliage, fillets, spinning top feet and lemonwood borders with fine grain on a background of equally fine rosewood (the quality of the veneers and its execution is of the highest quality). A preserved piece with magnificent bright and matt gold gilding, notably the beautiful pendulum, the column bases and capitals and the dial rim, well chiseled 46.5 cm. A beautiful piece in working order, new from the period with its sober blued steel hands... A gong with an Argentinian sound will indicate the hours and half hours, and its beautiful and clear presence will honor your
