Description

Louis XV period ceremonial furniture The disproportion between the body and the base gives it all its rarity. The curved front adds a little more authenticity. The slightly curved base perfectly matches the fretwork crosspiece. We find the same quality of fretwork on the gallery perfectly combining curve and counter-curve. The contrast of the materials marble, bronze and wood enhances the quality of the period. The sides and the front crosspiece are in fern pattern rosewood and the back in rosewood. (h 46 cm) This ceremonial furniture has the four identical sides and has a hidden drawer. The arched and geometric handles made it easy to move from one living room to another. It will therefore easily find its place in your home. Delivery possible not included in the price.
