Description

Pair of covered pots in Saxony porcelain mounted on gilt bronze. Each pot and its lid are painted with floral decorations, the lids are also topped with an unopened flower. The pots are set in gilt bronze going from the base in a laurel wreath inserting a fluted foot on which the pots rest. On each side the handles in the shape of lions' heads rise towards the top of the pots and end with an openwork and beaded rim in which the lid rests. Signed under the pots with the mark of Saxony. Work from the end of the 19th century.
