Description

A magnificent antique ring, crafted between the late 1600s and the early 1800s, featuring a substantial hand-cut diamond of approximately 3 carats. The gem is set à jour in an intricately pierced silver bezel, adorned with scroll motifs that echo late Baroque or Moorish-inspired designs. The yellow gold mount, with its split shank and architectural shoulders, offers a harmonious blend of structural solidity and ornamental elegance. The underside of the setting is also openworked, a sign of refined craftsmanship and artistic intent. A rare jewel, remarkable not only for its beauty but for the history it embodies -- a timeless piece of wearable heritage.
