Description

Elegant and rare original Victorian-era set from England, dating to the second half of the 19th century.

It consists of a rectangular main table with scalloped edges and two round folding side tables, designed to fit neatly underneath the central table via two carved channels. A practical and refined example of 19th-century multifunctional furniture.

The central table, likely made of solid English oak, features finely turned legs and a beautiful wood grain.

The two side tables have drop-leaf circular tops, resting on turned legs with stretcher bases. Once folded, they slide perfectly under the rectangular table, making the whole set compact and elegant.
