Description

This exquisite necklace is a true statement piece, blending timeless elegance with bold color harmony. Crafted from 18-karat yellow gold, the choker-style design features a sleek and minimalist gold wire that gently embraces the neck, drawing all attention to its remarkable centerpiece. The pendant showcases a lush green tourmaline cabochon, weighing an impressive 17.80 carats, whose soft, domed cut enhances the natural depth and character of the stone. The green tourmaline radiates vitality and sophistication, catching the light with subtle reflections that seem to glow from within. Surrounding the central stone is a captivating arrangement of nine pear-shaped rhodolite garnets, totaling 4.68 carats. Their deep raspberry hue creates a stunning contrast against the vivid green of the tourmaline. Set like petals around the central gem, the garnets form a delicate floral motif, adding richness and texture to the composition. Designed for the discerning collector, this necklace balances modern simplicity with gemstone opulence. The contrast between the polished yellow gold and the vibrant, colorful stones results in a piece that is both artistic and wearable. It sits beautifully on the collarbone, making it ideal for evening wear, cocktail events, or simply elevating a chic day look. Whether worn as a complete set or with the pendant alone, this is a one-of-a-kind jewel -- a perfect expression of refined individuality and exceptional craftsmanship.
