Description

Display table - Louis XVI style, early 20th century
Charming display table in light wood, Louis XVI style, dating from the early 20th century. This refined piece of furniture has an opening glass top allowing you to display jewelry, watches or collectibles, while protecting them. The four sides are also made of glass, ensuring perfect visibility of the contents from all angles. The interior is lined with pale pink velvet, bringing a delicate and feminine touch to the whole. The slender and elegant base rests on four tapered legs connected by an X-shaped spacer with a central medallion, typical of the neoclassical style. Perfect for enhancing a room or being used as a display in a boutique, this piece of furniture combines functionality, finesse and timeless charm. Dimensions: Height: 76.5
