Description

This vase from the Karlsruhe manufactory features a simple and elegant design, typical of the European ceramic aesthetic of the 1950s and 1960s. It has an elongated shape, slightly flared towards the bottom, with a conical silhouette that narrows at the base. The neck is rather thin and the vase features a curved handle, which adds a practical touch while being aesthetically integrated into the shape. The finish of the vase is smooth, with a matte glaze that varies in shades of gray, giving the overall effect a soft and subtle texture. The surface of the vase appears slightly grainy, a characteristic effect of handmade ceramics, giving it a natural, handcrafted appearance. The base is lighter in color, creating a nice contrast with the overall shade of the vase. This type of Karlsruhe vase is often appreciated
