Description

A refined testament to the elegance of the Art Deco movement, this five-leaf mahogany table dating from 1900 perfectly embodies the harmony between functionality and aesthetics. Designed to accommodate 6 to 18 guests, it offers remarkable modularity thanks to its six interlocking extensions that allow it to adapt to all occasions. Its base, a truly sculptural work, rests on two imposing legs whose edges are delicately adorned with floral and fruit motifs, distinctive signatures of Art Deco. Every detail testifies to the craftsmanship of the time, when nature and its organic forms inspired designers. Once unfolded, this table reveals all its ingenuity: two pairs of retractable legs support the ends of the tabletop, ensuring stability and balance even in its largest configuration. This clever design reflects the
