DesignRectangular dining table designed by Alfred Hendrickx for Belform in the 1960s. This sleek table features a robust chrome frame and a beautifully crafted rosewooden top and rosewood feet. Alfred Hendrickx (Mechelen, 1931) was a Belgian designer from the 1950s and 1960s. Hendrickx became famous, among other things, with his Belform series for Expo '58. He is described as Belgium's most important post-war designer. This versatile piece effortlessly combines industrial charm with rustic elegance, making it the perfect addition to any dining room, kitchen, or workspace. The sturdy metal frame ensures durability and stability, while the rich wood grain adds warmth and character, creating a
