Description

A refined and sober style

This magnificent wardrobe in ash burl, dating from the Biedermeier period (circa 1820), perfectly reflects the elegant simplicity typical of the time. Its harmonious and clean structure enhances the natural beauty of the wood grain, accentuated by delicate and refined inlay work.

Fine materials and expert craftsmanship

Crafted with high-quality materials, especially ash burl--renowned for its rich veining and strength--this piece showcases the artisanal expertise of early 19th-century cabinetmakers.

Elegant inlays outline its form with precision, and the detachable construction offers rare practicality for antique furniture of this size.

Excellent condition and impressive dimensions

The wardrobe is in excellent overall condition.
