clothing worn by Saint Camillus de Lellis (1550-1614), founder of the Camillian order, canonized in 1746. He is the patron saint of nurses and the sick. Below, in an ornate triangle: Bone relic with handwritten label "S. Rodopheni M." Probable ex-ossibus fragment of a holy martyr named Rodopheni (or Rhodopenis / Rodopenae), possibly from the ancient Roman martyrology (not modern canon, but plausible presence in the catacomb relics distributed in the 17th-18th centuries from the cemeteries of Rome). Period: late 17th / early 18th century Origin: Italy (Rome or Naples) Materials: blackened wood, glass, silk, rolled cardboard (paperolles), gold threads, wax Dimensions: Height 36 cm x 32.5 cm Width x 7 cm depth Condition: Very good condition, traces of wear, discreet chips on the corners of the frame, original glass, intact episcopal seal on the reverse, period strings and sealing. In accordance with canon law (can. 1190 §1), this sale concerns only the reliquary as an object of sacred art. The relics it contains are not the object of the transaction, but are included free of charge for their historical and cultural value.
