Description

A rare and impressive Helena Wolfsohn Dresdenporcelain vase with cover, dating to around 1880. The large vase is decorated with hand-painted Watteau-style scenes of elegant courting figures, framed in rich raised gilding, and set against a turquoise ground with floral sprays, demonstrating the refined Dresden taste of the late 19th century. The reverse bears the underglaze blue mark used by Helena Wolfsohn in the late 19th century. The gallant and romantic characters and decorative floral panels are recognizable from Helena Wolfsohn. The Helena Wolfsohn factory existed for a short time (1879-1883), so the products of this manufactory are rare. At the factory near Dresden the porcelain itself was not
