Description

This impressive 19th-century French mirror is a stunning example of the Louis XV style, combining elegance, opulence, and timeless charm. Its grand scale allows it to be used as a full-length mirror, either leaned casually against a wall or mounted for a dramatic statement in a living room, bedroom, or entrance hall. The richly carved frame features the hallmark Rococo motifs of the Louis XV period: sinuous scrolls, acanthus leaves, and delicate floral accents, all gracefully arranged to highlight the mirror's elongated form. The original gilding has aged beautifully, revealing a soft, warm patina with subtle wear that only enhances its authenticity and historic character. The antique mercury-style mirror plate offers a gentle, slightly muted reflection, typical of 19th-century craftsmanship, adding depth and
