BIOGRAPHY:
François-Pierre DAUGUET, farmer, commune of Saint-James, Captain of the Lower Normandy Corps of the Royal Army of the West.

HISTORY:
The 1816 reward sabers are in fact the old sabers of the Second Company of Musketeers, model 1814, called "Black Musketeers". In 1816, when the two companies of Musketeers were dismissed, it was decided to use the sabers of the Second Company still remaining in storage to transform them into reward sabers. To do this, the Musketeers' cross on the mount was leveled and a silver-plated copper medallion stamped with the great Arms of France was riveted to it. The chape is engraved with the words "Donnée par le Roi à Mr...", and the blade, which was originally white (without any engraving), is now engraved with "VIVE LE ROI". Hence the fact that the back of the blade is originally engraved with the name of the manufacturer and dated 1814, the date of the creation of the Second Company of Musketeers of the King's Military Household.
