Description

Pair of Louis XV cabriolets from the 18th century, stamped B. Maulin. Carved and painted wood, with an original gray patina, with natural wear highlighting the structure. Scalloped backrest with a finely molded frame, ending in a marked point at the seat, typical of quality productions. The back is covered with a checkered fabric stretched as an exterior facing, contrasting elegantly with the Damask in shades of gray that covers the interior and the seat. Careful work in the carvings: arched legs, crosspieces with sculpted movement. Original horsehair upholstery. Seats in good condition, comfortable and stable. French work from the 18th century.
