

Early 19th Century George IV Period Mahogany Caned Library Bergère

3 700 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Mahogany

Width : 67

Height : 104

Depth : 73

Description

Early 19th Century George IV Period Mahogany Caned Library Bergère This exquisite early 19th-century George IV period mahogany caned library bergère armchair is a fine example of the craftsmanship and elegance of its time. It features a beautifully caned back, arms, and seat, and is supported by elegant turned front legs and arm supports, all resting on original brass castors. The chair showcases stunning quality mahogany and original brown leather, reflecting its rich history and craftsmanship. Equipped with leather squab cushions and arm pads adorned with float buttons, this bergère offers both style and comfort. The chair retains its original color and patina, along with caning on the sides, seat, and back, ensuring it remains a standout piece in any setting. The chair seat height is 48cm. This

Dealer

Anthony Short Antiques

18C & 19C Fine Period Antiques, Decorative Furniture & Works of Art

Tel : 00 44 7595603348

Mobile : 00 44 7595603348

Market Square

Petworth GU28 0AH

bergère is of a good large size, providing ample seating space and making it a striking addition to any library or living room. In excellent condition, this magnificent armchair, crafted in England circa 1820, is not only a functional piece of furniture but also a stunning representation of Georgian design.