Description

Elegant oil portrait on canvas depicting a young man with a pensive gaze, signed Jean Blaise lower left. A handwritten inscription on the reverse mentions Nancy, October 1940.

According to the story transmitted with this work, the painting would have been painted by Mr. Weil, professor at Lunéville, and signed in the name of the model or the commissioner. The treatment of the face, subtle and expressive, testifies to a beautiful academic mastery, typical of portraits of students or private commissions during this troubled period. Oil on canvas mounted on original stretcher. Dimensions: Condition: good general condition Worldwide shipping EUR20 in France
