Description

This 18th century engraving depicts an interior scene and is beautifully crafted. The frame is made of gilded wood. There is a text in old French indicating that this scene depicts a son presenting his fiancée to his father. There is no signature, but there is a note stating "A Paris Chés Martinet". Note some stains and foxing, and traces of yellowing. The whole thing is still presentable; the background has been changed. Sold as is, uncleaned. For the condition, please carefully examine the photos. Feel free to zoom in. The photos are an integral part of the description.
