Description

Imposing handcrafted pasta press, made of brass and forged steel, measuring 60 cm high.

Equipped with its large T-shaped crank screw and its solid cylinder, this model was used to make fresh pasta (spaghetti, maccheroni, vermicelli, etc.) in small-scale artisanal production or in professional kitchens. Delivered with a complete set of six brass dies, allowing for varying shapes and diameters. Beautiful original patina, engraved numbers and workshop marks. An object both decorative and functional, a testament to the culinary arts of the late 19th / early 20th century.
