Dimensions: 100 × 72 cm
A swimmer, body extended forward as if diving from a springboard, visually merges with the silhouette of a cat. The dark background enhances the fluorescent tones and glitter highlights, creating an instantly striking effect. Silombria's pop aesthetic blends with his experience as an advertising graphic designer for major brands such as Fiat, refining his ability to produce iconic, clear, and impactful images. The composition uses a direct, accessible, and highly communicative visual language, where athletic energy and visual play intertwine with a queer

Marco Silombria was a painter, sculptor, ceramist, and advertising graphic designer. A pupil of Emilio Scanavino, he collaborated with Armando Testa and created campaigns for Fiat, Facis, Superga, and other Italian companies from the 1970s to the 1990s. Active in Albissola and Turin, he combined pop culture with classical myth, introducing the male nude in Italy through a pop-dada approach and developing an iconic, immediate, and visually powerful body of work.
