Description

Oil painting on oval canvas, in good condition, not signed
Subject: Portrait of a nobleman from the 17th century, painted in the 19th century, in a landscape
Period: 19th century
Formats: unframed 108 x 87 cm, oval
Very beautiful portrait of a nobleman in a landscape - Northern European School of the 19th century based on portraits made around 1620/1630
In Northern Europe, the wearing of the so-called confusion ruff was very fashionable in the 1620s/1630s. The so-called confusion ruff is an unstarched ruff, with several rows, much less rigid, falling on the shoulders in a ruff then in large turned-down collars, finally in a turned-down collar edged with lace (Louis XIII fashion).
Sold with Invoice and Certificate.
Painting visible at our gallery in L'Isle sur la Sorgue (France), on weekends.
