All three pieces measure 9.5 cm across and 2.8 cm high - perfect for serving nuts, chocolates, or as decorative ring dishes. These compact forms were far less common than larger Wedgwood lustre bowls, and finding three with distinct but harmonious designs is unusual. The pieces are perfect for collectors of Makeig-Jones lustreware and represent a rare opportunity to acquire three complementary designs in outstanding preservation.
Condition: Excellent antique condition.

Reflections in images are due to the lustre glaze, not defects.
