Description

Beautiful revolving bookcase made of solid mahogany and dating from the late 19th century. With its square section, its pivoting central structure allows for smooth rotation for easy access to your favorite books. Composed of three shelves connected by a series of thin, ribbed wooden rods and divided into compartments, this bookcase is ideal for lovers of antique furniture with authentic charm. Its tripod base, decorated with a spinning top in its center, provides great stability thanks to its wide span. Combining aesthetics and practicality, this bookcase is ideal for a living room or an office.Period: Late 19th centuryExcellent condition after restoration in our workshop.Waxed finish.Additional photos available by clicking on the following link:
