Description

Spanish or South American School 17th century
"The child Jesus carrying the cross and the basket of sharing, in the background perhaps the city of Seville" Probably a metaphor for Spanish colonisation and Christianisation of America. To highlight the letter A on the basket formed by nails which refers to the Alpha: the beginning, the totality, the divine sovereignty and the role of Christ as origin and finality. Christian tradition, especially in the Middle Ages, saw in the Child Jesus a model of silent charity and humility, close to the poor and the simple. Unsigned copper, Dim circa 20 x 15 cm.
