Ca d'Oro in Venice,
Italy
The Ca d'Oro is one of the most famous palaces on the Grand Canal. It owes its name to the gilded exterior decorations. Built in the mid-15th century, the facade of this palace is a true work of architectural goldsmithing.
Format 25.9 x 34.9 cm
Under mat 40 x 50 cm
Carlo Naya (1816-1882) is one of the pioneers of photography in Italy. After studying law in Pisa, he settled in Venice in St. Mark's Square to open one of the largest establishments dedicated to photography of his time.
