Description

An elegant pair of 19th-century floral still lifes, painted in oil on canvas. Each work features a delicately composed bouquet of vibrant red flowers, luminous whites, and pastel shades, set against contrasting backgrounds: one with a rural landscape softened by a vaporous light, the other in a darker, more intimate atmosphere. The rich colors and subtle play of light and shadow reveal careful craftsmanship, typical of 19th-century naturalist painting. The texture of the brushstrokes and the finesse of the floral details demonstrate a certain know-how, in the spirit of the French and Belgian schools of the time. Period frames in wood and gilded stucco, decorated with friezes of pearls and foliage motifs, bringing an authentic charm to the whole. Dimensions (frame included): Dimensions at
