Description

Pair of wrought iron consoles, crafted with antique 18th-century inspired elements, with a refined decoration of interlacing and volutes. The base, with its balanced and elegant design, illustrates the virtuosity of the artistic ironwork of this period, where robustness and lightness combine harmoniously. Each console is topped with a top in Tholonet breccia, a veined marble particularly prized in 18th-century aristocratic residences, also known by the flattering name of Aleppo breccia. This material, sought after for the richness of its colors and contrasts, gives the whole a prestigious and refined character. The trapezoidal shape and curved on three sides of the tops further accentuates the originality
