Description

Here is a pretty pair of opaline crystal vases of the quality of "grain of rice", probably from Baccarat, Second Empire period. They are shaped like a profiled baluster with a flared corolla neck with slight highlights of gold threads.

Mouth-blown, each model is unique, which is why in this pair one of the vases is slightly higher which is visible when they are side by side, once a little apart from each other, this is not visible. Shipping in France and internationally contact me for terms
