Description

An ancient male statue with a distinctively shaped head in the Songye art style. The head is elongated at the sides to accommodate the very large, almond-shaped eyes that are half-closed. The nose is triangular in shape, and the small, crescent-shaped mouth sits above the small, protruding chin. At the top of the head is a hole into which a horn filled with magical substances was once inserted. The thick neck rests on broad, flat shoulders. The arms are bent at the elbows, and the hands rest on the enlarged stomach, which has a prominent navel. The legs are bent at the knees. Height: 23cm
