Description

A little robot with a funny face, and provider of light! Published by Satco c., Italy, around 1960. Complete, with its spring antenna ending in an evocation of a flying saucer, it is completely "in its own juice", including the electrification and the switch, original and functional. Its "mouth" opens at will in order to diffuse or filter the light, which also illuminates its chrome eyes... It is also a simple way to change the bulb, on an E14 socket, small screw base... (an LED bulb will be provided). Entirely original, with some logical but light oxidation, but clean and cleaned. This model, at the time, was also distributed in blue or aluminum tint... Height = 26 cm with the antenna, 21 cm without. Width x length = 12.5 x 12.5 cm Weight = 513 grams; extremely careful shipping in addition.
