Description

Elegance, finesse, and refinement come together in this sumptuous Persian Isfahan rug, one of the most prestigious expressions of Iranian weaving art. Circa 1950, Shah era. Handwoven with remarkable precision, this rug combines the softness of high-quality wool and the luster of silk, knotted with a silk warp and a silky wool pile known as "kurk." This technique gives the rug exceptional shine, unparalleled finesse, and remarkable longevity. Its finely crafted central medallion, surrounded by harmonious floral motifs, embodies the classic aesthetic of Isfahan, renowned for its perfect symmetry and decorative richness. The border, in a deep blue enhanced with shades of burgundy and ivory, enhances the overall effect and adds a touch of majesty to the composition. A true work of art, this Isfahan rug
