Description

Console crafted in the Art Deco style, made from exotic wood veneer, likely rosewood or palisander, carefully selected for its spectacular grain and natural contrast. The piece features an architectural structure typical of the Art Deco movement, with bold geometric lines and elegant symmetry. The inverted U-shaped base rests on a tiered plinth, giving the whole piece a sculptural and well-balanced look. The demi-lune top is accentuated by a discreet and refined edge, perfectly integrated into the overall design. The high-gloss finish enhances the richness of the wood and reflects meticulous craftsmanship, likely achieved using French polish, as was common at the time. This piece embodies the spirit of understated luxury and showcases the refined craftsmanship of the 1930s. It would be
