

Gallo-roman Shard - Apollo And His Lyre - 1st 3rd Century -pro3

100 EUR

Period : Before 16th century

Condition : En l'etat

Material : Terracotta

Description

Uncommon iconography. - fragment dimensions 5.5/5.5 cm - average thickness 0.5/0.7 cm. This is an archaeological fragment of a shaped piece made in Gaul between the 1st and 3rd centuries AD. Sigillata terracotta - -- Sigillata ceramics are fine ceramics intended for table service, used in Roman Antiquity. It is characterized by a red glaze cooked in an oxidizing atmosphere. The decorations are in relief, molded, printed or added. Some pieces bear stamps, hence the name, sigillata coming from sigillum, the seal. The technique was introduced in Italy from the Hellenistic Near East (2nd century BC). The conquest of Gaul by Caesar, the organization into provinces by Augustus brought the presence of numerous legions. This presence created a market, and led to the opening of factories in

Dealer

Cabinet des curieux

Cabinet of Curiosities

Tel : 0144830957

Mobile : 0613747892

12 Passage Verdeau

Paris 75009

Gaul. There were several large production centers: Lyon, Graufensénque (Aveyron) and Lezoux Auvergne (Arvernes territory).