Description

Sculpture, Terracotta Horse Head, signed, 20th centuryBeautiful terracotta sculpture depicting a horse's head, created with great expressive power and plastic dynamism. The work features marked and vigorous lines, with hollowed-out volumes and surfaces modeled with decisive strokes, which enhance the animal's muscular tension.The horse is depicted with its mouth half open and an intense gaze, conveying a sense of vital energy and movement. The stylized and broken lines of the mane further accentuate the dramatic and almost monumental effect of the sculpture.The terracotta, left in its natural brownish color with slight tonal variations, gives the work an archaic yet modern appearance, balancing classical tradition and expressive 20th-century interpretation.Signature: Present but illegible on
