Description

Exceptional and rare pair of antique fireplaces made at the end of the 19th century in Breche Violette marble, this pair is incredible both for its rarity of marble and for its quality of realization. Its massive band made from a single block of marble decorated with fluting and rosettes, the legs are carved with acanthus leaves and the sides are paneled. They are sold with their very beautiful original cast iron narrows and their hearth plates with cabochons. The second is currently being polished available from next week at our showroom.
