Description

Rare bronze smoking lamp with brown patina, richly decorated with masks of Pan, a Bacchic deity from ancient mythology. Made in the 19th century, this collector's item combines refinement, symbolism, and decorative elegance. A unique object, both utilitarian and ornamental, worthy of a place in a cabinet of curiosities or a prestigious collection. Description: Charming bronze smoking lamp with brown patina, featuring a finely chiseled decoration of masks of Pan, a rural god associated with pleasure. The central receptacle is decorated in the round and retains its original accessories (spikes). The circular base, elegantly fretted and decorated with plant motifs, collects the ashes while ensuring stability and balance to the whole. Typical of 19th-century decorative art, this lamp illustrates
