Description

This delicate pastel illustrates the sensitive and atmospheric style of François Crabit, an artist attached to the landscapes of the Southwest coast. In a refined composition, the artist captures a marine view from a dune: a wide, clear beach opens onto the sea, barely outlined by touches of blue and green. To the left, a small isolated house can be seen, a discreet refuge facing the immensity of the horizon. The treatment is deliberately vaporous: the sand, soft ochre and pearl gray tones blend into a misty, almost abstract sky, reinforcing the feeling of calm and space. This work captures the hushed atmosphere of days of sea fog, so typical of the Atlantic coasts. Glass frame with green baguette and matching mat, in harmony with the shades of the pastel. Dimensions on view: 49 × 39 cm
