Applied Arts section. At that time, his workshop in Ivry sur Seine had 5 employees. Production is divided between decorative earthenware and utilitarian earthenware. He already works with department stores such as Bon Marché, Galeries Lafayette and Printemps. From 1944, he collaborates with many ceramists such as Pierre Fouquet, Paul Pouchol, Georges Jouve, Louise-Edmée Chevallier and Pierre Roulot, in 1949. It is he who will supply advertising ashtrays to the major brands of the time: Simca, Cinzano, Dubonnet, Dop-L'Oréal... From 1948, he participates in the Salon des Arts Ménagers and this for several years. The 50s will be synonymous with success! His workshop expands, the clientele becomes international, he participates in many trade fairs including the 1st Commercial Trade Fair of Art Workshops which will later become the Salon Maison et Objets. His production is flourishing and he registers numerous models and techniques because Pol Chambost is an artist but also an outstanding technician. (Source Thomas Fritsch)
