Description

Large counter from the early 20th century. Imposing and full of character, this large wooden counter dating from the early 20th century stands out for its strong presence and understated elegance. Its robust structure, typical of the utilitarian furniture of the Belle Époque, is highlighted by a matte black paintwork highlighted by a worn patina, revealing in places the wood grain and the traces of time. The front, punctuated by large molded panels, brings relief and depth to the whole. This architectural composition gives the counter a style that is both industrial and chic, perfectly suited to an interior with raw charm or a more contemporary atmosphere. The generously sized top offers a beautiful functional surface, while the back of the unit features storage (drawers and shelves), ideal
