Description

This beautiful war club, whose shape is called "bird's beak" (gö-poropwä-rä-märü), presents the stylized figure of a kagou bird, a species endemic to New Caledonia. The beak, here particularly elongated, gives the weapon efficiency and elegance. Good general condition, a regluing without loss at the back of the headdress and rare splinters of wood. Kanak people, New Caledonia, late 19th century. A custom-made base in patinated brass. Provenance: SVV Giquello, Drouot, June 27, 2025.
