Description

Roman Terracotta Oil Lamp Depicting Gladiator / Chariot 100 - 300 AD. This wonderful lamp depicts a gladiator riding or racking the chariot. One hand grasping the reins and the second hand working his whip. The gladiator wearing some elaborate helmet with plum. The torso has faded but you can just make out the right hand that would have grasped the reins, the tunic clearly shows some designs. The dual horse clearly in full gallop. The bowl has a small hole on the side, and the bottom is stamped, but this is illegible. Provenance: Originally from a private French Collection. Contact me for further assistance.
